The home is a three-story brick structure, 230 feet long, situated on the ridge running through North Langdon, which commands a sweeping view of Langdon and Brookland to the north and the slope toward the Eastern Branch of the Potomac to the south. The central portion is three stories high, and the remainder two stories.

It contains sixty living rooms, an office, large dining room, library, infirmary, a chapel seating 150, two rooms for deaconesses, a kitchen, laundry, general storage room, a trunk room, and the building is heated by a central heating plant.

Ground was broken for the new building on October 8, 1912, and on November 9, 1913, the cornerstone was laid by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, president of the Lutheran Theological Seminary. On the building committee are the Rev. Dr. John Weidley, chairman; W. H. Finckel, recording secretary; and H. T. Dorn, G. P. Miller, and Dr. A. P. Fox. Heading the finance committee is the Rev.
